Claude Cheat Keys for UN Reporting & Briefing

Drafting from a UN report? 8 quoted lines, softened.

In one test, Claude kept the report's facts and its own reading in separate parts. It restated the report's claim of "universal commitment" as broad engagement.

In the test answer, 8 lines were quoted word for word from the document. Checked against the source 2026-10-23 · @harimjung

Claude Cheat Keys for UN Reporting & Briefing Tested

I asked for a draft. It split facts and claims.

Claude ran with the skill and could fetch the file. It put the report's own claims in a table and restated each one.

[p 4] While the full regional coverage demonstrates a universal commitment to implementing the ETF, the regional distribution, as well as feedback from Parties, suggests that challenges in preparing and submitting BTR1s were encountered by developing countries.

[p 11] The centralized group review demonstrated how innovation can strengthen both the efficiency of review delivery and the effectiveness and coherence of implementation of the ETF

Please draft a report section summarizing the secretariat's activities on the technical expert review of biennial transparency reports, using only the UNFCCC document attached below. Keep facts, interpretation and assumptions in separate, clearly labelled parts, and soften any overstated claims into cautious language. For every quote you use, quote the document word for word and give its page marker, such as [p 3].
